A Column of Advice:

Dear Kendall Gazette,

I always try to be nice to kids in my class. But there is one person that is sometimes not nice to me and my friends. They don't always mean to be, but the things they say sometimes hurt our feelings. What should I do?

Dear Ima Unsure,

If it hurts your feelings then just ignore them. If it continues then tell someone like a teacher. The teacher will talk to them and most likely they will stop. Most people can do things they don't mean to do in the first place. In their head it might sound nice but when it comes out it is mean or harmful to others. Things will get better many people have gone through this once in their life.

A Short Story

By Michael Halowell

Once upon a time there was a young man named Darek, he loved exploring. As a child, he hated going outside. He hated the thought of bugs, rats, etc., but as he grew he learned to like playing with the other kids outside in the mud. Eventually, when he got old enough he started taking exploring to a whole new level. He told his mother and father he was going out to do bigger things with his life. His parents weren't very supportive and thought he would never do anything with what he was given. So, he went on to his dream of being a professional paranormal explorer.

There he was staring into the dark that awaited, the wind calling his name. He knew, it was destiny. As Darek crept through the warn crusted house, it got colder and colder until eventually Darek felt like an icicle. Until he heard a voice, "Darek, why, why Darek, someone help!" A high pitched voice called from the shadows. Darek started rummaging through the house following the voice until he looked through the doorway...

Dear Kendall Gazette,

Last week I met with a teacher to do reading. I get so nervous, I think I messed up. What do you do for the reading test? Do you get nervous? How do you focus to do your best?

Nervous Reader

Dear Nervous Reader,

How can you do your best to stay focused? Well you can read once a week to help you prepare. Or you can ask to have a fidget. Try to just enjoy reading books.

College Basketball
By Stephen Elliott

Today I’ll be talking about our favorite teams in College Basketball and how they’ve been doing. For right now though I’m going to be focusing on Syracuse Orange Basketball. I saw the Syracuse game against Pittsburgh on Saturday 1/19. Syracuse won 74-63. They even beat Duke 95-91 on Monday 1/14, Duke was one of the best college basketball teams this season. Syracuse is doing great this season but, there are still plenty of games to come. I had great seats I could see the whole court. I didn’t even have to leave my

National Honor Society Food Drive
By Colby Hughes

As members of the National Elementary Honor Society, Sophia, William, Stephen, Savannah, Abrielle, and your author of this section Colby, we are doing a competition. As you are wondering, what is the competition? The competition is which grade collects the most food for the drive. Each month will have a different food or essential. The month of March is toiletries like paper towels, toothpaste, tooth brushes deodorant, shampoo, soap, toilet paper, and Kleenexes. The prize for the grade that collects the most food and essentials will earn a pizza party. So if you decide to participate remember your donations will help a person or family in need. We encourage you to help win your grade at a pizza party and feed someone in need. It is a win-win because if you donate your grade you could earn a pizza party and someone in need gets food.
